The proper way to channel water to an oak tree is demonstrated by Bob Velasquez, an Upland city employee, in Upland Memorial Park. Velasquez is digging a shallow trench around the tree's drip line, a circle around the tree's outermost branches. Water sinking at the drip line will reach the tree's deep roots. Many oak trees in Upland are dying because of this year's drought but can be saved through proper watering.

Upland's many oak trees latest victims of drought

Upland's numerous oak trees, most of which have rarely needed special watering, are the latest victims of this year's drought.

However, most of them can still be saved if they are watered properly, Ken Hoover, the city's director of general services, said.

Although dying oak trees can be found throughout the city, they are especially prominent along 13th Street, as Hoover pointed out in a recent tour.

The leaves of the trees are turning brown prematurely in the middle of summer, Hoover said.

"Normally, oak trees are not a (watering) problem in this area," he said, because their roots extend far below the surface — often as much as 100 to 150 feet — to reach the water table underground.

When winter rains replenish the water table, oak trees can survive a dry summer, Hoover pointed out.

But because of comparatively little rain this past winter, the water table — already depleted since water is pumped for other uses — has dropped drastically, "and the trees are thirsty," Hoover said.

The oak trees cannot be saved by the surface watering many homeowners do with their lawn sprinklers because the moisture doesn't reach the roots, he added.

In fact, such watering techniques may contribute to the trees' plight by forcing the roots upward, thus raising sidewalks and creating a public hazard in the process, Hoover said.

Furthermore, by saturating the surface, water can damage the oak trees and lead to another serious problem, Hoover noted — oak root fungus.

The proper way to water an oak tree is to dig a trench around the tree's drip line, a circle extending around the tree's outermost branches, he said.

In this way, the water should reach the roots, where it is most needed, Hoover said.

The important point is that the water should be directed away from the trunk and toward the ground just below the tree's outermost branches, Hoover said, even if a trench cannot be dug.

And such watering should be more than just sprinkling, he added.

Hoover admitted such a suggestion was in conflict with the city's policy of urging residents to conserve water.

But he said it is the method by which the trees are watered that counts — not necessarily the amount of water used.

And oak trees, dying of thirst, are susceptible to disease and insect attacks, Hoover added.

Other local cities are facing even more serious problems than Upland with oak trees, "and if we have another dry winter, let's face it — the trees will die," Hoover said.

Hoover conceded that city maintenance crews cannot water oak trees the city is responsible for in the same manner he has recommended for homeowners.

"Deep watering is the correct method for oak trees, and we'd like to do it, but it's a matter of economics," he said. "We just can't afford to do it this way."

Further information on proper watering techniques for oak trees is available from the city government. John Shoemaker, the community relations coordinator, may be called at 982-1352 for information.

Supervisors probe water supply level

Concerned over the drought plaguing all of California, the county board of supervisors Monday asked for an assessment of San Bernardino County water supplies.

The supervisors also asked for a report from the county's Environmental Improvement Agency (EIA) on what water conservation steps could be taken by the county to help avert a water shortage.

"Perhaps we could take some conservation measures early in the game," stated Supervisor James Mayfield of Apple Valley, who also asked for the inventory of the county's water supplies.

"Some of our own lakes are getting dangerously low," Mayfield said. "It's incumbent on the county to get a prediction on the kind of supplies that are going to be available."

Mayfield noted that Lake Crowley, a lake near the Sierras that helps supply Los Angeles County with water, is 30 feet below normal.

"I've heard rumors there might be water rationing in Los Angeles County this summer," Mayfield remarked.

Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino suggested that San Bernardino County might be able to get outside funding for a water conservation program since it has qualified as a drought disaster area.

Refugee legal status probed

A seminar on the problems of Vietnamese refugees will be held at the Pomona Legal Aid Office from 3 to 5 p.m. July 17.

Robert A. Mautino, instructor in both immigration law and international law at Western State University College of Law (WSU) in Orange County, will assist the office and clarify questions on the legal status of refugees and aspects of immigration law.

Mautino, whose linguistic abilities were developed during his seven years of diplomatic service prior to joining the WSU faculty a year ago, plans to review the French language, in order to communicate with the refugees present. The Legal Aid Office is located at 146 E. Third St., Pomona.

The column "The Town Crier" is designed to be informative on all issues of city government.

To reach "The Town Crier," write: Community Relations, City of Upland, 460 N. Euclid Ave., Upland, CA 91786. Persons should include their name, address and telephone number. Only initials will be listed in the column.

QUESTION: We have several household items we would like to sell. Can we put a sign in the parkway to indicate the sale of them? L.L.

ANSWER: The Upland municipal Code stipulates that no person shall post, stick, stamp, print or otherwise affix any bill, poster advertisement or notice (excepting official notices and notices required by law) upon any street, telegraph pole, telephone pole, tree, electric light pole, electric street railway pole, or upon any other pole, post or fixture upon any public street or sidewalk (sidewalk means parkway) within the city, or post, stick, print or otherwise affix any such bill, poster advertisement or notice upon any curbing or sidewalk of any public street, alley, or lane in the city. The answer to your question is no.

QUESTION: We have recently moved into the area. Can you tell us who has to maintain the parkway? D.Z.

ANSWER: It is the responsibility of the City of Upland to maintain, trim and repair trees in the public right-of-way, with the exception of providing water to such trees; but it is the responsibility of the property owner to provide necessary water to maintain the growth and beauty of the trees. It is also the responsibility of property owners to maintain that portion of all parkways, including side-on and back-up parkways, abutting their property whether they have direct access to the parkway or not. The maintenance of the parkway shall include, but shall not be limited to, the cultivation, irrigation, fertilizing and pruning, in a good work

Donrey essay contest

Upland youth winner

An Upland youth's essay has been judged the national grand prize winner in the elementary school division of the Donald W. Reynolds Foundation Bicentennial essay contest.

The winner is Loren Wingerd, whose essay previously won local and regional competitions in the contest. The essay theme is "What I Would Give America as a Present on Its 200th Birthday and Why."

As national winner, Wingerd will receive a check for $300 from the Reynolds Foundation and a Nevada Bicentennial Medal donated by Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan.

Wingerd previously received a $25 award as the local winner, chosen from nearly 1,000 entries submitted in three age-group categories from local schools. He won $100 as a regional winner.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Wingerd of 690 Quince Ave., Upland, Loren recently completed his sixth grade year at Upland Elementary School.

The other two national winners announced by Donald W. Reynolds, chairman of the sponsoring foundation, are Tina Munson of Ely, Nev., in the junior high division, and Annah Lee of Carmel, Calif., in the high school division. They will receive $500 and $600, respectively.

"The response to this essay contest nationwide has been very gratifying," Reynolds said. "Everyone who entered put a lot of thought into their essays, but I'm especially proud of Loren Wingerd, Tina Munson and Annah Lee. I'm very proud of them and the excellent essays that they wrote."

The national prize winners represent those essays judged best among several thousand submitted in Arkansas, California, Hawaii, Indiana, Missouri, Nevada, Oklahoma, Texas and Washington.

The foundation sponsored the contest in states where The Donrey Media Group has newspapers and radio and television stations. Bonita Publishing Company's three San Bernardino County newspapers, the Upland News, the Cucamonga Times and the Montclair Tribune, are members of the Donrey Media Group.

Wingerd's local, state and national prizes were presented to him by James D. Holmes, general manager of Bonita Publishing Co. Holmes expressed pride in the youth's achievement of winning in "the toughest kind of competition."

Judges for the grand prize finalists were Dr. Charles E. Bishop, president of the University of Arkansas; Dr. Henry J. Tobias, chairman of the history department of the University of Oklahoma, and Gov. O'Callaghan.

Wingerd's winning essay follows: Somebody once remarked, "I am not everybody, but I am somebody. I can't do everything, but I can do something. Because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do the something that I can do."

I, myself, am just a 10-year-old in the sixth grade, and I seem rather small to be able to help America. But I can do something. I can help by working hard to excel in the areas in which I am good. I can help at home by having a good attitude and by doing my best when I practice my violin.

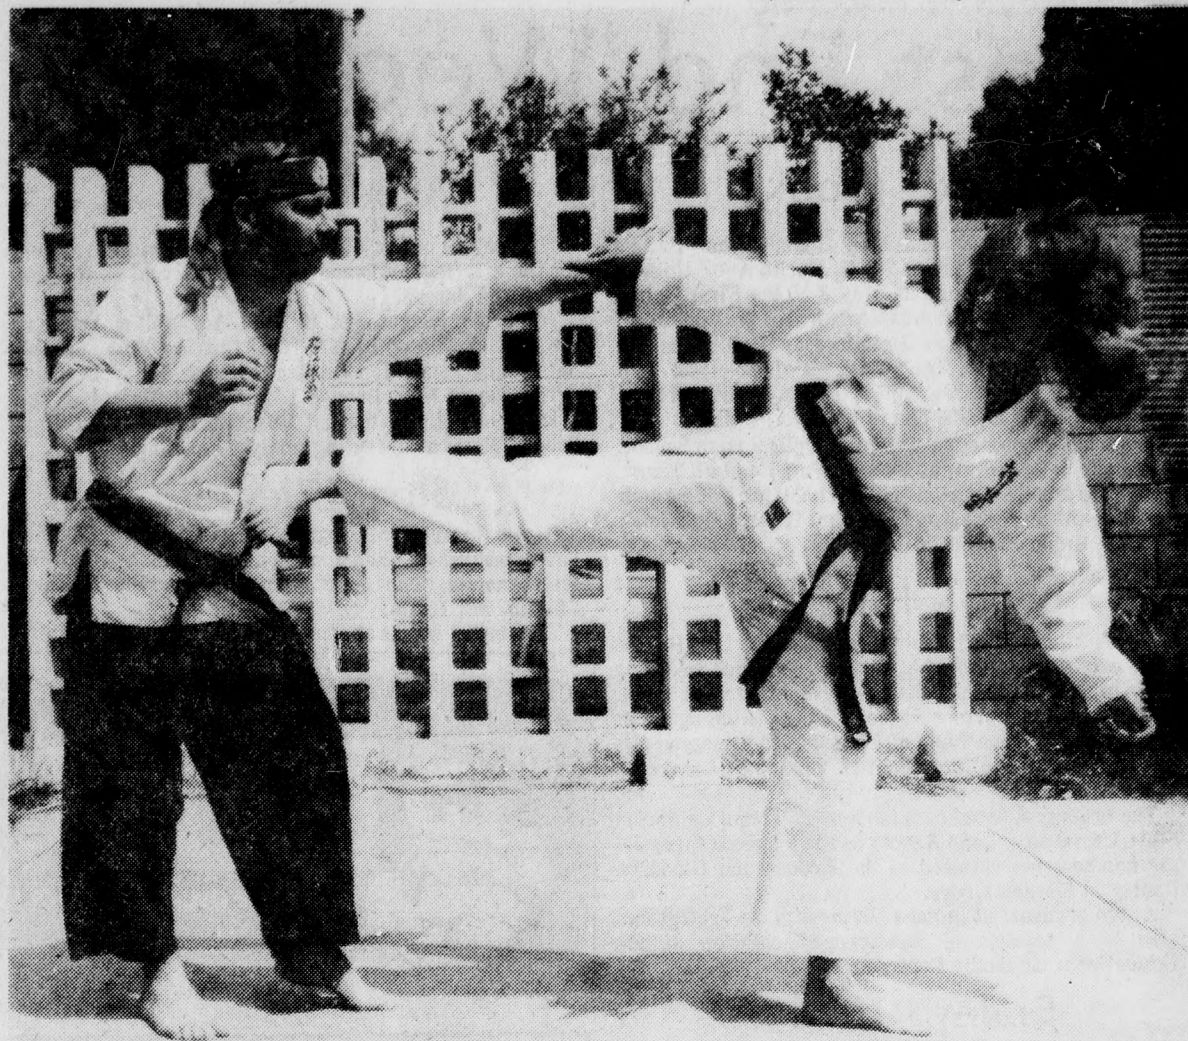

I can help at school by working hard to get good grades, by being fair and by encouraging others not to fight or argue.

I can help in my community by keeping it clean and by obeying its laws.

I can help my country by being a good citizen and respecting what it stands for.

Therefore, my gift to America on its 200th birthday would be myself and my best efforts in everything I do.

If each person in this country would do his small part, America would be a better place.

Karate instructors Darle Carpenter and Sherry Moon illustrate one of the maneuvers that will be taught at a West End YMCA karate class for adults and young people at 7 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday. A free introductory class will be offered next week.

Mikesell urges more inland county power

Greater smog voice requested

Ontario Supervisor Daniel Mikesell stated Monday he will seek greater representation for inland counties on a new regional smog board created last week by state legislation.

The legislation, guided through the legislature by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, would replace the existing Southern California Air Pollution Control District (SCAPCD) board controlled by supervisors with a board including county and city representation.

Lewis introduced the bill to loosen the domination he maintains Los Angeles County has over the present SCAPCD, controlling four of the eight votes on the smog board. The new smog board alignment, to take effect Feb. 1, 1977, will create a 10-member board, with half of the votes on the board belonging to cities in Los Angeles County as well as the county itself.

San Bernardino County supervisors opposed the Lewis bill, complaining it will not strengthen the voice of San Bernardino and Riverside counties on the regional air pollution control board.

Mikesell said Monday he has contacted Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who signed the Lewis bill Friday, and "indicated our dissatisfaction with the bill."

Mikesell said he urged the governor to consider amendments to the bill "that would make it more equitable for the two inland counties" and which would put a cap on the level of contributions the counties will have to make to the new district.

He said the governor assured him the changes would be considered by his administration.

Mikesell also issued a veiled warning to local cities that they may have to help fund the new SCAPCD, since they will have representation on the new board.

"They've been interested in this bill and I hope they'll be willing to share some of the expense of the district," the Ontario supervisor remarked.

The existing SCAPCD board will meet this Friday in Pomona and Mikesell will be representing San Bernardino County since Supervisor Dennis Hansberger, the regular representative to the SCAPCD board, is on vacation.

Mikesell said there may be a move Friday by Orange County to pull out of the present SCAPCD, to which the four Southern California counties voluntarily belong. Under the Lewis legislation, the counties will have to participate in the new SCAPCD.

Local students earn awards

Two West End students are recipients of scholarships given by the American Legion Auxiliary.

The announcement was made at the 57th annual convention of the auxiliary held recently in Stockton.

Charles McLauchlin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McLauchlin Sr., and a June graduate of Chaffey High School, received one of five $800 scholarships.

Barbara Louise Sykes of Alta Loma, a 1976 graduate of Chaffey College, received the $300 Carol Marks Memorial scholarship.

McLauchlin will attend Humboldt State University in Arcata and plans to become a teacher with a degree in life science of zoology. He was an outstanding student at Chaffey High School. He is an Eagle Scout and junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 320, Old Baldy Boy Scout Council. He is in Who's Who Among American High School Students, and is active in the young people's group at Westminster United Presbyterian Church in Ontario.

Mrs. Sykes plans to enter Pitzer College, Claremont, and obtain an elementary teaching degree specializing in early childhood development. She is a native of California and a graduate of Glendora High School. She is the mother of two small daughters. Mrs. Sykes received two dean's honor roll certificates at Sigma. She works part time Chaffey College and is a member of Alpha Gamma Counseling Center.

WINNER — Ten-year-old Loren Wingerd of Upland smiles as he receives a check for $300 from James D. Holmes, general manager of the Bonita Publishing Company. Loren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Wingerd of 690 Quince Ave., earned the check when he was declared national grand prize winner in the elementary school division of the Donald W. Reynolds Foundation Bicentennial essay contest.

County opens summer jobs

Economically disadvantaged young people between the ages of 18 and 21 can qualify for one of the 2,400 summer jobs available through the county Schools Occupational Services Division this summer. Funds for the program have been made available through CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) Title I grants from the Inland Manpower Association.

To qualify for the summer youth program, young adults must be "disadvantaged" according to criteria as established by the Department of Labor based on family income. For example, a young person from a family of four would be eligible if his family's income did not exceed $5,500 per year.

As it embarks on the summer youth program, the occupational services division has relocated in an effort to be more accessible to its clients. The unit is now housed at the Employment Development Department, 1148 E. Second Ave., San Bernardino.

Among the many services offered to CETA enrollees are transportation assistance, qualification services, job development, placement services and work experience. Information on the total program can be had by telephoning 383-3541.

The 2,400 jobs are located in many public and private nonprofit corporations throughout the county and provide up to 26 hours work per week for nine weeks.

Young people in the West End who feel their family income qualifies them may apply in person at the West End Multi-Service Center, 200 S. Euclid in Ontario.

None of the finalists currently are employed in the Upland district.

The Upland School District Board of Trustees has begun scheduling interviews with finalists for the district's vacant superintendency post.

Health News...

Your Aching Back Means That You Are Important

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

Each day an average of 6 1/2 million Americans — most of them successful men — are laid up with a new status symbol, the backache, which has replaced the ulcer as the badge of high-pressure living.

You have to realize that in many ways your back attacks are the result of stressful living.

And so one way to stave off that next attack is to reduce the nervous stress in your life.

Stop doing things you don't really like to do, like taking on jobs and assignments you really don't enjoy.

If someone irritates you, tell him or her so, and that includes your mate.

It helps to blow your top once in a while.

Most backache sufferers are men 45 to 64 years old and women under 45.

Once you have had a stress backache you can count on it to re-occur again and again, just as surely as the sun will rise each day.

If left untreated its recurrence will become that predictable.

Of course, chiropractic has proven itself as the premium response to the backache problem.

The warning signs of stress backache are reasonable simple to note. Frequently, yawning in a fatigued state will cause a person to "wince" or double over to avoid what they feel will be a rib popping out of place or a muscle spasm.

Sometimes the tightness in the back or the hips or legs will grow with stress or pressure, and serve as something of a distress signal, warning of a backache to come.

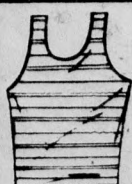

You cannot avoid stressful responsibilities of this modern day life we live. But you can seek significant care of backache problems and to condition the body to their prevention.

It's in this sense that chiropractic has been a Godsend to contemporary American life.

Congressman to appear at local market

Don't be surprised if the silver-haired boxboy bagging your groceries for you on Thursday, July 15 from 2 to 6 p.m. looks familiar — he's probably your Congressman, Jim Lloyd!!

That's right. Hanover's Ranch Market is proud to welcome our Congressman, Jim Lloyd, for an afternoon of work in our market and meeting with our customers.

"What better way to learn first hand what people are thinking or what their problems are in making a living for their families than to get out and work side-by-side with them?" Lloyd asked.

"Few residents really care about the many hours you have to spend on the Hill drafting and negotiating legislation. What they want to know is how well do you understand and represent their views. I thought if we could demonstrate a sincere interest in listening to people in situations in which they would feel comfortable, then we have better success in encouraging future communication," Lloyd said.

Hanover's Ranch Market invites you to take a few minutes on Thursday, July 15 between 2 and 6 p.m. to say hello to our new "boxboy," Congressman Jim Lloyd.

Super Coupon Savings at Ralphs and Special Purchase of Western Yearling Beef

Ralphs has made a special purchase of western grass-fed yearling beef.

Because it's leaner than mature grain-fed beef, it's lower in fat and it's much lower in price. Because this yearling beef is so lean, we recommend that you tenderize or marinate it before broiling or barbecuing. In fact, cooking instructions are included with each package. You can also choose from our regular selection of Ralphs Meat Master Beef, but while supply lasts, you have an alternative in type of beef and price. As always, Ralphs unconditionally guarantees satisfaction or your money refunded.

Camp Wawoma

Camps set for blind

A new and exciting summer camp program will be offered Aug. 25 - Sept. 15 at Camp Wawoma in Yosemite, according to Jerry Sorensen, pastor of Jerry Sorensen, pastor of Covina Seventh-day Adventist Church, which serves Walnut, San Dimas and La Verne.

"All campers must be legally blind with some other disability for this 'Nu Vision' camp sponsored by the Christian Record Braille Foundation of Lincoln, Nebraska," Sorensen said.

"The Nu Vision camp is designed to give a new vision of capabilities to the multi-disabled, showing them and their parents the difference between being disabled and handicapped," he added.

Many specialists are donating their time to the camp. One of these is the manager of Radio Systems Design, who will train the blind to operate their own camp radio station.

Applications are now being accepted from throughout the Western United States. Counselors, one for every two campers, are now being trained.

Essential to the camp program, Sorensen said, has been Eddie Yarmac, who has a degree in community and therapeutic recreation.

Previously with the Kennedy Foundation, Yarmac was associate director of the Shriver Camp for the retarded and their other recreational programs. He was also a consultant to President Lyndon Johnson's Council on Physical Fitness.

Awarded a full scholarship by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for his masters and doctoral work, Yarmac chose Southern Illinois University's accelerated program in rehabilitative administration.

With this training he was instrumental in developing for Christian Record Braille, (through Union College in Lincoln, Nebraska) the only counselor training program among Seventh-day Adventist colleges, Sorensen said.

Sponsorships of the multi-disabled are being paid by Christian Record, which receives no government aid for the camp programs but is funded by gifts, wills, legacies and public contributions.

Sorensen said the offering taken last week at the Covina church will aid in the nationwide work of the Christian Record Braille Foundation.

For applications to send a young person to the camp write to the foundation, P.O. Box 6097, Lincoln, Nebraska 68506. Send Nu-Vision donations to Nu Vision Camp, P.O. Box 138, Mt. Herman, CA 95041.

Film shows plight of Russian Christians

A major new film from Underground Evangelism (UE) is now available for showings to churches and other organizations. Entitled, "At Any Cost," it tells and graphically portrays the true story of today's Christians behind the Iron Curtain - their trials and tribulations, their faithful witness to the Lord Jesus Christ, and their joys and triumphs in Him, according to a UE spokesperson.

"Filmed inside Russia and in West Europe it traces the triumphant growth of the Persecuted Church, despite brutal Communist oppression," the spokesperson said.

"Rare and priceless footage, filmed and brought out of Russia at great risk, shows an actual worship service of the Persecuted Church behind the Iron Curtain. A highlight of the film, these scenes show believers meeting, at the risk of heavy fines, imprisonment, or even death."

Featured also are interviews with believers just recently out of Russia, who lived and suffered under brutal persecution before their release to the free world. Speaking from firsthand experience, they tell what Christians are undergoing in Communist lands today.

"Another highlight is the filmed and recorded testimony of David Hathaway, one of UE's many committed Bible couriers. On the free side of the Communist border where he was finally arrested for his Bible distribution activities, Hathaway vividly describes the experience that led to his arrest, 10 long months of hardship in Communist prisons, and, finally, his thrilling release in answer to the prayers of God's people," the spokesperson.

"The incredible story of God's moving on behalf of the Persecuted Church is graphically told and portrayed in this deeply moving color film. It will inspire and strengthen all who see it, and bring many to a new commitment to Jesus Christ."

CYO plans camperships

The Catholic Youth Organization has started its campership program to provide children, who might otherwise miss summer fun, with a vacation at one of several resident day camps. Local residents can help CYO give this opportunity to more children than ever before by contributing clothes, sleeping bags, luggage and money.

"But this campership program is not charity," said a CYO spokesperson. "Fund-raising events are organized and carried out by all members of the neighborhood families. From the grandparents to the teenagers, everyone becomes involved in many different functions to help send the younger children to resident camp for the summer."

Ernie Lopez, program director of the Glendale Community Center, Glendale, said "these resident camps, sponsored by CYO offer children a chance to be part of the American mainstream."

For more information concerning campership and contributions call (213) 385-7211 and ask for Helen Yost.

The CYO is non-sectarian in its services and is a member agency of United Way.

DONATIONS SOUGHT - Last month the Rev. Joe Brown of Ontario, during a trip to Mexico, found this young girl sleeping in a cardboard box next to a garbage dump in Tijuana. Without shoes, clothing or food she is now being cared for by another woman at the dump who doesn't have food for herself. Food, clothing and cash donations are now being collected to help other needy people. Cash and store coupons should be sent to The Mission of Rev. Joe Brown Inc., Dept. 19, 1360 S. Signal Drive, Pomona, CA 91766. For more information call (714) 629-6086.

Alta Loma High School
8880 Baseline Rd., Alta Loma

School granted $130,000 bequest

The School of Theology at Claremont is the recipient of an unrestricted bequest in excess of $130,000 from the estate of the late Hallie O. Hicks of San Gabriel, a one-time school teacher who later became secretary to a federal judge in Los Angeles, President Gordon E. Michalson has announced.

Mrs. Hicks died at 75 years old while a resident of San Gabriel in September, 1974. She was a native of Illinois and attended McKendree College and the University of Illinois at Urbana. She taught school in Illinois in the 1920s and moved to California in 1926 to continue her teaching career. In 1940 she married Robert L. Hicks, who was a chief warrant officer in the United States Navy. Hicks still resides in San Gabriel.

For a quarter of a century Mrs. Hicks was secretary to United States District Judge Leon R. Yankwich in Los Angeles. She retired from that position in 1959.

In 1940 she joined what is now First United Methodist Church in Alhambra, in which she was active until her death. Her pastor, the Rev. George M. Raun, described her as "one of those persons who could always be counted on when help was needed."

In announcing the Claremont gift, Michalson said, "We are deeply grateful to Mrs. Hicks for this significant and generous investment in tomorrow's ministry. This is the type of support which ensures the future of the church. This lasting memorial will perpetuate her Christian concerns and ideals through the young ministers who will benefit from her generosity. The School of Theology is fortunate to have concerned Christian friends like Mrs. Hicks."

The 300-student school is located adjacent to Southern California's six-college "Claremont Cluster," and provides multi-denominational preparation for the ministry. In addition to its primary function as a United Methodist institution, its closest ties are to the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the Protestant Episcopal Church, the United Church of Christ and the Presbyterian Church.

More than 70 per cent of the school's graduates assume parish-related tasks after graduation.

Traditional favorites catch the eye

Climbing roses are colorful

There is nothing as colorful and eye-catching as the climbing rose in summer. Traditional favorites for low fences, archways, lathe work screens and pillars, climbing roses enhance many landscapes from spring to fall with their bright flowers. Climbing roses also make unique ground covers where the long canes are tied to the ground. Do your shopping now at local nurseries for container grown rose plants in full bloom. Select your favorite colors and fragrances.

To create a lovely rose covered support, plant the climbing roses in well-drained soil or raised beds. Roses do best where they receive a full day of sun, or at least half a day sun, and where the air circulates freely. Space the plants from three to five feet apart. Your nurseryman can provide planting instructions and cultural tips.

Horizontal or arching branches produce the most flowers on climbing roses. If left untrained and allowed to grow ever upwards, the plants will put all their energy into top growth and very little into lateral growth. Since it is the lateral growth from the main stem, or cane, that produces the flowers, it is important to train climbing roses early for maximum flowering. The training is simple.

The first two years prune out only the dead wood and spent flowers. Tie the long canes securely to the support. The third or fourth year, begin to prune the flowering lateral branches close to the canes. Prune out older canes in place of the newer more vigorous ones as you would with any rose plant.

Popular varieties that show off their beautiful flowers throughout the growing season include such favorites as 'Don Juan,' 'Golden Showers,' 'Joseph's Coat' and 'New Dawn.' Newcomer to the list of sure to please climbers is 'America.'

Create a lovely and colorful effect with climbing roses. The climber here is America, an All America Rose Selection for 1976. The abundant and fragrant flowers are a bright salmon pink. Traditional favorites for low fences, archways, lathe work screens and pillars, climbing roses enhance many landscapes from spring to fall with their bright flowers. Shop now at local nurseries for container grown rose plants in full bloom.

Vegetables go Bicentennial like old days

Many stories are told about George Washington who was considered in his day the country's outstanding scientific farmer. He was a prolific writer and in turn received weekly reports from his gardener, all during the trying years of the Revolution.

In a letter sent to Thomas Jefferson, George Washington was concerned, for example, about the bugs that were performing his peas. His Kitchen Garden at Mt. Vernon, Va., included some 30 varieties of vegetables besides peas. If today's science of broad-spectrum pesticide development had been known in George Washington's time his task would have been easier.

In 1776, Spectracide (R) Garden Insect Dust can be effectively used as a foliar application at the first sign of troublesome insects. This dust is especially recommended for such vegetable garden hosts as peas, beans, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, sweet corn, cucumbers, melons, peppers, squash and tomatoes. Apply in early morning or late evening so that all parts of the plant are contacted.

Foliar treatment to control aphids, cucumber beetles and flea beetles, among other insects affecting vegetables can be accomplished with the use of Sevin, malathion or Spectracide (R). For example, two tablespoons of Spectracide in three gallons of water will cover approximately 1,000 square feet of vegetable garden.

In 1776, a vegetable garden would have included almost all of the vegetables that we grow today. However, tomatoes were not the most popular item on the menu.

Corn was not grown in the kitchen garden of that day but the 9/10 of an acre at Washington's home did include an impressive array of vegetables, all formally laid out in beds.

One could find there lettuce, eggplant, onions, beets, turnips, spinach, cabbage, bush beans, cauliflower, carrots, radishes, cucumbers, potatoes, summer squash, broccoli, tomatoes, asparagus and peas. The garden also included many herbs since a garden at that time had to be a source of medicine as well.

If we were to reconstruct such a Bicentennial garden today, we would allow for succession of crops as our forefathers did. We would add strawberries, gooseberries and currants as fruits for the table. Fruit trees would be part of the planting scheme especially our lovely dwarf varieties. Tomatoes would be an important crop and of course our hybrid vegetables would be superior in quality and flavor.

The peas, which concerned Washington and Jefferson are a far cry from the 1976 varieties. Today's disease-resistant vegetables would have astonished those gentlemen.

Let vines climb up

Let vines climb and cover bare poles and service area fences for a truly lovely effect. Imagine the added beauty an evergreen clematis with its masses of white flowers will provide to any fence in the yard. Or what dazzling color in deep shades of magenta, rose and gold a bougainvillea can add growing along the side of the house.

Cockscomb loves heat of summer

Put blazing color in the garden now for continuous summer and fall display with scarlet sage (Salvia) and cockscomb (Celosia). These annuals love the summer heat and thrive in the sun.

Cockscomb does especially well in hot summer areas. The crested varieties of cockscomb develop a velvety fan-shape flower head in brilliant shades of scarlet, yellow, crimson, orange and purple. These plants create a massive showy effect suitable for close-up viewing in pots, tubs and flower boxes or as mass plantings. The plume cockscombs send up dense clusters of feathery graceful flowers that make charming and colorful borders.

The flowers of both plume and crested cockscomb can be dried and used in winter bouquets and flower arrangements, so be sure to plant enough for both garden display and cutting. Cut the stalks when the blossoms are at their peak and hang them upside down in an airy, shady place.

Scarlet sage provides non-stop color all summer until frost.

Misconceptions about women's rights explored

Women have fewer legal rights in marriage and divorce than they may think. In an article in a recent Family Circle, Ellen Switzer writing with Wendy Susco, associate professor of law at the University of Connecticut, maintains that while most women underestimate the rights they do have in employment, housing and credit, they tend to overestimate their husbands' and the state's obligations to them as wives and mothers.

A common mistake pointed out by the authors, is in thinking that with the court's help a wife can force her husband to tell her what his income is, or that she can insist on being supported in a life-style consistent with that income. Say Switzer and Susco, unless the wife lives in one of the nine community-property states (Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington), what the husband earns is usually considered his own private business. In addition, "support" is narrowly defined in most states. "It means he (the husband) has to keep her reasonably well-nourished, provide minimally adequate shelter, give her enough clothes to keep her from freezing in the winter or sweltering in the summer and pay for needed medical care."

In community-property states, a wife has the right to know what her husband has earned since their marriage. However, in most of these states he is authorized to "manage" the community-property, which, according to the authors, can mean "doling out an inadequate household allowance."

As for divorce, a situation within the court's jurisdiction, there are no state or federal government guidelines on how much alimony or child support a wife can expect. While in a community-property state a wife would have a good chance of getting half the couple's joint holdings, in other states, child support and alimony are up to the judge's discretion.

While authors Switzer and Susco paint a dim picture in terms of legal support, they cite new laws in areas such as credit, which have increased women's legal rights. For example, the new Equal Credit Opportunity Act, in effect since last October, prohibits credit grantors from practicing any form of sex or marital status discrimination. If a woman can prove discrimination, say the authors, "she may sue for actual damages plus, in some instances, an additional $10,000 in punitive damages."

Shrine All-Star Football Classic Prep All-Americas gather

Anthony Munoz (Chaffey) and 15 other high school All-Americans will be among 56 of Southern California's finest pre-college football players who report Thursday to begin preparations for the 25th annual Shrine All-Star Football Classic on Saturday, July 17, in the Rose Bowl.

Both North and South squad members arrive at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Los Angeles in the morning for physicals before attending a luncheon for coaches, players, press and Shrine officials. Afterwards, the group will tour the Los Angeles unit of the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital, where they will visit patients. More than 6,000 children have been helped by the more than $1.5 million raised by the game.

The North squad will train at Cal Tech. (Pasadena), while the South will be headquartered at Cal State Long Beach.

The North, which has won the last three games, will be guided by co-coaches

Glen Hastings and Chris Ferragamo, who have a combined total of more than 200 victories between them.

Hastings, with a 116-48-3 won-lost-tied record in 20 years of coaching, won two CIF titles at Brea-Olinda High School before moving to El Dorado. There his teams have captured the Orange League crown the past three seasons and finished runnerup for the CIF championship last year.

Ferragamo has compiled an impressive 44-22 record at Banning and guided his team to the Los Angeles City finals last season before losing to powerful San Fernando, city champs for the past two years.

North coaches have equally impressive credentials.

Jim Jones, who has guided South Hills (Covina) to three straight Sierra League titles, sports a nine-year record of 64-25-3 and a CIF crown in 1974.

Appropriately, Dick North will be coaching the North team. He is the only varsity football coach in the 15-year history of Palisades, where he has built a 68-24-2 mark over the past 10 years.

His squad lost a 12-10 heart-breaker to San Fernando for the 1973 Los Angeles City championship. Last fall, his team dropped a wild-scoring 32-30 game to Ferragamo and Banning in the playoffs.

Offense should be the name of this year's game. Outstanding records of the players and special rules limiting the defense should combine to produce a free-wheeling contest.

Coaches have agreed to ban stunting and blitzing on defense to insure a wide-open, crowd-pleasing offensive battle.

South quarterbacking chores will be in the hands of Craig Johnston, a St. Paul Cifer, and Samoa Samoa, a Carson prep All-American.

This pair will be matched against the North's Kenney Moore, two-time Los Angeles City "Player of the Year" from San Fernando, and Kevin Munro, an All-CIF choice who led Loyola to the CIF championship last year.

The Shrine game is a rematch, of sorts, for Johnston and Munro. Their teams battled for the CIF title last year before Loyola prevailed, 14-12. Munro, headed for Notre Dame, was the CIF's leading scorer last season with 161 points.

If past individual records mean anything, fans can expect a profusion of touchdowns from the South. Three players scored 15 touchdowns apiece last season and another tallied 11.

Halfbacks Fred Ford (St. John Bosco), Artie Hargrove (Long Beach Poly) and wide receiver Rick Parma (Kennedy — La Palma) all produced 15 TDs last season. Andy Gray, Narbonne halfback, tallied 11.

Parma ranks as the all-time Orange County leading receiver with a career record of 166 receptions for 2,767 yards and 34 touchdowns. He grabbed 54 passes last year for 1,059 yards.

The North can counter with a valuable two-way performer in John Van Vuren (South Hills), CIF-4A "Player of the Year." The 6-foot-1, 190-pound quarterback, who will see action as a defensive back, intercepted 26 passes in three seasons, 12 of them last year. He scored 18 touchdowns and ran and passed for 1,800 yards.

The all-time scoring leader in Los Angeles City history is a member of the North backfield. Rickey Maddox, All-City halfback from Palisades, broke Anthony Davis' mark of 309 points with 325. He did it by tallying 20 touchdowns, 31 PATs and five field goals.

The North will be able to boast one of the most sought after prep linemen in recent years in Munoz. The 6-foot-6, 280-pound defensive tackle, who was all-everything, is headed for the University of Southern California.

Benefit for hospital

Horse show planned

The second annual Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles Benefit Horse Show will be staged at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in the main arena of the Rainbow Canyon Ranch, 9300 N. San Gabriel Canyon Road, Azusa. Sponsored by the San Gabriel Guild, the All English Los Angeles County Horse Show Exhibitors Association-B (LACHSEA) approved competition will be judged by Mark Mullen.

Exhibitors from Southern California will compete in the 22 classes for juniors and adults which include the two LACHSEA Hunter Seat Medal classes for riders 17 and under and those 18 and over.

At the close of the show, two high point awards will be presented, one in the 14 and-under age division and one in the 15-and-over. The winners each receive an original copper-enamel plate with the logo of San Gabriel Guild.

For the second consecutive year, ranch owners Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gatti have contributed the use of their equestrian facility for the special fund-raising event for Childrens Hospital. The medical center, located at Sunset and Vermont avenues in Los Angeles, is internationally recognized for the quality of its pediatric care and the excellence of its programs, research and teaching.

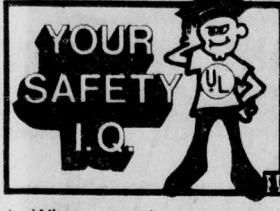

Proceeds from past projects sponsored by Childrens Hospital's 41 guilds, auxiliaries and affiliate groups have added full-time staff positions in the divisions of neurology, pediatric surgery and cardiology. Funds have also been raised to develop a program for respiratory disorders and to provide an endowment for residents' education. This year, the hematology-oncology division will receive funds.

An added feature for exhibitors is the awarding of four perpetual trophies: the newly established San Gabriel Guild Trophy in the junior jumpers, 17 years and under; the Rainbow Canyon Ranch Trophy, amateur, 18 and over; Junior Working Hunters Trophy, 13-17, and the Teacher's Pet Trophy, 11 and under.

- When mowing grass on an incline with a walk-behind mower, the mower should:
 - Move horizontally along the face of the incline, or
 - Up and down the incline.
- A TV receiver can be built into a wall safely.

☐ True ☐ False

ANSWERS

1. Provided as a public safety service by Underwriters Laboratories

2. Probably FALSE. The average TV receiver consumes several hundred watts of electrical power and therefore requires good ventilation. Only a professional expert can do the job safely.

1. If the hill is steep, have that tied to the end of a rope. A person at the top of the hill can hold the end of the rope.

Clown corps readying for the circus

When the Clown Corps of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus piles into The Forum from July 20 thru Aug. 4 for a 29-show engagement, it's razzle-dazzle, merriment and smoothly structured madness all the way. The amusing antics of this group of lively young men and women keep the laughs coming fast and furious, and the show moving along at a bright, steady pace. Few people realize the energy and stamina required for the madcap stunts and the plentiful pratfalls that so joyfully enrich The Greatest Show on Earth.

All seats are reserved and are on sale at The Forum Box Office and all Ticketron and Mutual Agencies.

Show times are: 2:30 p.m.

and 8 p.m. on Tuesday through Friday; 10:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m., and 8 p.m. on Saturdays; and 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Sundays.

On the average, clowns are in the arena throughout the Circus performance. They leap, fall, juggle and somersault with an effortless ease that belies the difficulty of their precise routines and is a tribute to the Art of Clowning taught at Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Clown College.

How do these talented people keep their strength and energy up with a hectic schedule that leaves so little time for rest between costume changes? By the correct care and feeding of their most valuable asset — that superb clown machine, the human body.

At Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Clown College in Venice, Florida, prospective funnymen and women get lessons in nutrition as well as juggling, acrobatics, and costume-making as part of the regular curriculum. Future Clowns learn the value of a well-balanced diet to meet the extraordinary demands made on their bodies by their arena antics.

Besides learning the principles of diet, future clowns find that an all-important part of their nutrition education concerns choosing the right snacks and quick "pick-ups" to sustain them during their busy days and evenings when there's no time for home cooking.

Pumpkin and sunflower seeds and nuts are good portable foods that supply carbohydrates for quick energy, as well as minerals and protein. They fit neatly in clown pockets and won't smear make-up when nibbled. Dried fruit is also a stand-by with the inhabitants of clown alley, as well as raisins.

Whenever the Circus train pulls into a new town, performers immediately hunt for a grocery store so they can stock up their larders. The clowns have been carefully taught which foods to look for, and which to avoid, sound advice that we all could benefit from. Look for fresh eggs, milk, natural cheeses, yogurt, and butter. Look for whole grains, nuts seeds, and wholewheat flour. Look for fresh meat, including poultry and fish. Look for fresh, ripe fruits and vegetables. Stay away from any foods which contain white flour, sugar, chemical preservative or additives. The closer a food is to its natural state, the better it is for you.

Breakfast is a performer's most important meal, and for a clown it may be their only chance to take some time for cooking a good hot meal on their hotplate in their small train compartment. A good simple breakfast could be Wheatena with eggs broken into it and stirred in while cooking. Pancakes can be nutritious if they're made with wholewheat flour. Add some sunflower seeds, cooked rice or fruit to your pancakes and serve them with a little honey or molasses or real maple sugar. Eggs with meat (fish, ham, liver, beefsteak) will provide a hearty supply of protein.

Since clowns are often away from their kitchens for the rest of the day, they sometimes use time in the morning to make healthy soups and stews to take with them to the arena in wide mouth thermos bottles, a nutritious habit that all working people would do well to adopt.

Few of us burn as much energy on the job as clowns do, but that doesn't mean we should eat carelessly. Following the nutritional principles taught to Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey funnymen can keep us all healthier and happier.

Carlsbad offers view of whales

SACRAMENTO — "Whale Watchers Walk," a promenade along the seacoast bluff at Carlsbad in San Diego County, is one of several new features now open to the public at Carlsbad State Beach, according to Jack Welch, state park area manager.

The promenade, extending 1,700 feet from Tamarack Street to Cherry Street, will provide an excellent vantage point for viewing the January-February southward migrations of the gray whale.

Welch said other new additions at the state beach are a beach access stairway at the foot of Cherry Street, two new restrooms on the beach, two additional lifeguard towers, benches and tables, lighting, landscaping and bluff safety fencing.

The mile-long Carlsbad State Beach includes sandy beach ranging in width from 100 to 200 feet. Between the sandy beach and Carlsbad Boulevard are 30-foot-high cliffs of soft sandstone and earth.

The beach is open daily from 6 a.m. to midnight.
